THE MAN WHO DOES THINGS

Women's Institute

Holds Flower Show

The Champion W. I. meeting at the home of Mrs. Woodhull on Tuesday afternoon was a splendid success. There were thirty-six ladies present. During the business meeting a dance was arranged for a week from Friday night Sept. 18th. Also it was voted to have a Halloween ball, our annual affair Mrs. Lee Groves was elected delegate to the Cons. conference at Brant Sept. 20th.

The flowers showed were beautiful, and there is no reason why after this successful trial that Champion cannot have a real flower show for the children every year. The ladies chosen by the committee to act as judges were Mrs. Guy Volsay, Mrs. D. H. Galbraith and Mrs. J. Lee, and after careful consideration the prizes were awarded as printed below. A slight change was made in the prize list, owing to one or two exhibits being omitted and others added. During the afternoon Mrs.

Williamson sang "Annie Laurie" in her usual pleasing manner. Mrs. D. H. Galbraith of the Golden Rule Institute gave a very interesting and educational talk on "Legislation" which was very much enjoyed and appreciated by all. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Stephenson and Mrs. Sisson. The next W. I. meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. Watkins on Oct. 13th. Invitations have been received and accepted by the Champion W. I. to meet with Golden Rule on Sept. 17th and Barons Oct. 8th. Meeting adjourned with "God Save the King."

Latest reports from Marvin Schneider are to the effect that the fracture of his collar bone was a decidedly bad one, portions of the bone being broken entirely off. He was operated upon on Tuesday and will not be able to leave the hospital for some two weeks.

The marriage took place in Calgary on Tuesday of Mr. Geo. Money, of Calgary, and Miss Jessie Brown, of Champion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Brown. Many friends here will wish the bride a happy matrimonial journey.

The weather this week is perhaps the worst ever experienced here. Rain has been intermittent during the period and threatens to be delayed at least two weeks. The unthatched crop will naturally be more or less damaged.

Born—September 10th, to Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ashmore, a son.

A. McCullough left for Calgary on Wednesday night on a business trip.

Gunder Nelson is moving into the premises formerly occupied by Hill's Meat Market, having taken over the contract held by the latter. He will move his stock into the building as soon as repairs under way are completed. The meat market and bakery will be discontinued. Mrs. Hill having decided it was necessary to return to the farm.

The forthcoming Dominion election has caused hardly a ripple of interest so far in this vicinity. The delayed threshing and the question of how much longer it is going to rain are the live topics.

It is years since such stocks of goods have been carried by the merchants and the values being offered are unusually attractive. You can make no mistake in shopping in Champion.

A "nudee" farmer has just died aged 100 years. He leaves behind him 11 children, 69 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren. This is our notion of first-class colonization.—Winnipeg Free Press.

RED INFLUENCE IS BLAMED FOR SEAMEN'S STRIKE

Montreal.—Behind the world-wide disturbance in British shipping the "Red" influence, asserted J. Havelock Wilson, president of the British Seamen's Union. However, the machinations of the Communists are failing, and will continue to fail, he added. As proof of the weakness of the strike, Mr. Wilson pointed to the sailing of the Majestic from Southampton on schedule, and the progress towards normal operation made by other ships in British ports.

False news called by Communists to Australia had precipitated the seamen's strike there, said Mr. Wilson. In Britain, the "Reds" had taken advantage of a reduction in pay to try to bolster up their position by "mass action," and had worked on the feelings of the rober-minded worker.

"The British seamen, who carried Britain through the war by their efforts through the peace as well," said Mr. Wilson, pointing to the fact that no large liner had yet been reported sailing out of a British port through the present so-called strike.

"The trouble will be all over soon," he added, and prophesied a warm time for the agitators when the seamen who have betrayed them find they have been misled.

"I believe, however, that promises the Reds have made as regards strike money, but if they have promised any, they will have to deliver the goods or run for their lives."

The 100,000 members of his union, he said, would live up their contract and stick to their jobs.

Noted Scientist Dies In Africa

Professor Cutler, of Manitoba University, Victim of Malaria

Winipeg.—Birkenhead, with malaria fever, Prof. W. E. Cutler, of the University of Manitoba, who was leading a scientific expedition party in Africa in search of the cause of a large dinosaurian reptile, died Sept. 2, according to advices received here.

Professor Cutler, assistant in the department of geology at the University of Manitoba, left Winipeg January 30, 1924, to head the British Museum's party of explorers in Africa. He was considered one of the best authorities on Western Canadian geological history, and under the auspices of the University of Manitoba, had made extensive surveys of the formation of solid rock in both Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

He had discovered many relics of the day before the first white man set foot in the prairie country, and it had been his intention to compile a history of the natural formations of the country.

Prof. Cutler was born in London, Eng., 47 years ago.

He was unmarried.

Favor Ban On Narcotics

Trades and Labor Council Would Prohibit Manufacture Except For Medicine

Ottawa.—The trades and labor congress was on record favoring the complete prohibition of the sale of manufacturers of narcotic drugs except for medical purposes.

"The motion was the occasion for a brief criticism of the British Government," said T. Duck, of Toronto, declared that the British Government was largely responsible for the opium traffic of the world today because of its fostering of the industry in India and should be subject to severe censure.

James MacDonald, Toronto, said if one country more than another was responsible for the opium trade, it was the British empire. There was no such thing as a British commonwealth of nations, he said.

Bert Merron, Toronto, declared that the British empire alone was not responsible and the immediate or "spontaneous" of the industry would cause Germany and other countries to commence the manufacture of deadly substitutes. Britain was the chief critic of the world other nations, and the congress should be on record as opposed to the traffic, and in favor of the greatest measure to end public health.

Its insolvent financial condition compelled the government, which of the day before the first white man set foot in the prairie country, and it had been his intention to compile a history of the natural formations of the country.

Treaty With Japan

States Japan Ready For Trade Pact With Canada

Victoria.—Bringing with him the information that the Japanese people would welcome a separate reciprocity treaty with Canada, Hon. T. Kawai, now Japanese consul for Western Canada, arrived here on the liner Albatross.

Mr. Kawai said that while Canada had adopted the principles of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, which was ratified only by Great Britain, and not by her dominions, no direct trade treaty existed between Canada and Japan.

Scott Williams, of Montreal, accompanied by his mechanic, has arrived here from Western Creek. The machine was brought to Prince Rupert from Three Rivers, Que., for the expedition.

"Kidd" Kills French Farmer

Amiens, France.—The "Dad" of the great War remains a deadly enemy. Jean Roy, a farmer of Boucheville, which was under heavy fire by the German guns during the period of hostilities, was blown to pieces by a shell which had fallen without exploding and was buried in the earth. He struck it while driving a stake into the ground.

British Teachers Tour Canada

Extend Letter Rate To Wider Area

Additional Countries Are Included In Three Cent Postage

Montreal.—The post office weekly bulletin issued from Ottawa on August 29, gives the following information relative to letter postage to North American countries. From the first of September next the domestic letter rate of three cents for the first zone and two cents additional for each subsequent zone will be in effect as regards letters mailed in Canada to any part of the North American continent.

This rate already applies to letters for the United States, Mexico and the British West Indies, and as already announced, also comes into effect as regards letters for Newfoundland from the first of September. With the further extension mentioned above, it will apply from the first of September next to the following additional countries: Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Dutch West Indies (Aruba, Bonaire, Curacao, Saba, St. Eustas, St. Martin), French West Indies (Martinique, Guadeloupe, Guayana, Haiti, Honduras Republic, Nicaragua, Panama Republic, Salvador and St. Pierre and Miquelon).

No Plan Was MADE TO FORM WESTERN PARTY

Winipeg.—Nothing was ever said or suggested by me at the inter-provincial Progressive convention at Regina, or, for that matter, at any other of Liberal and Progressive forces in the west," said Hon. T. A. C. O'Leary, when interviewed in connection with a story published here. Knowledge of a move to form any such coalition was also denied by Robert Forke, Progressive leader, and Hon. A. R. Hudson, South Winipeg member.

"You may say, for me, but I said that I never heard anything about such a move. When the report reached me with having made a speech at the Regina convention putting forward an ardent plea for union of Progressive and Liberal forces in the west, with the object of making certain, if possible, defeat of the Conservatives. It is absolutely and positively untrue. Far from ever making such a statement, I never even suggested it, directly or indirectly."

"It's a piece of news to me," said Mr. Forke, over the long distance phone. "So far as the Progressives are concerned, no such move has been made. We would have nothing to do with any such union."

Hon. Mr. Hudson said no one had ever asked his opinion on such a question, and no such idea had ever been suggested to him.

Settle Claims With Mexico

Mexico City.—The foreign office announces that Britain has accepted an invitation extended by Mexico to appoint a sub-committee to settle the claims of the respective countries.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The announcement of the Dominion elections for Oct. 25, with nominations one week earlier, may or may not be a surprise to the average citizen, but it is a certainty that any candidate undertaking to organize such a riding as Bow River would find the time utterly inadequate. In such a contingency the sitting member should have a good chance of retaining the seat.

If this occurs we are certain of having an "opposition member" in the House of Commons no matter what party may be in power after the elections are held. Mr. Garland is an adherent of what is known as the "Ginger Group" and as such is opposed to any other party or group that has any chance of getting into office.

The big issue would appear to be between the Liberals and Conservatives on the tariff question, the latter proposing to raise the duty on almost everything. Generally speaking the prairie provinces, if their present representatives are any guide to their opinions, desire lower rather than higher duties. In Eastern Canada, with large manufacturing interests, protective tariffs are more popular, and are endorsed by a large portion of the Liberals as well as the Conservatives.

Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba had a practically solid Progressive representation in the late parliament, although this party is divided into two groups, the smallest of which the member for this riding belonged. The policies advocated by the "Gingerites" are, most anything that is opposed to everyone else's ideas. In other words they are a group of Daniels from their own standpoint and their situation is just about as lone as Daniel's was. One thing is certain, however, they may always be relied upon to bein the opposition to the government. They would be a failure in any other capacity.

It is a matter of regret that the campaign will be on during the busy time in this country and there will be little opportunity for gaining political knowledge by the farmers. This may have been planned higher up, but the most insistent demands for an election this fall have been voiced by Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservatives, so the date selected may be satisfactory all around.

At the moment it would appear that this election could not fail to strengthen the ranks of the higher tariff element at the expense of the Liberals and Progressives. Quebec and Nova Scotia were solidly Liberal in the last parliament but the members from the former province were by no means low tariff advocates, so that any change should favor the protectionists. Ontario is likely to increase this movement. The Progressives are likely to disappear altogether in the East but will likely retain a strong hold upon the prairie provinces which they now represent solidly. They have nothing to gain in any event.

Sentences imposed by Justices of the peace and police magistrates afford ground for wonder at their variations for very similar offences. Of course the same offence may be committed at two different points and there may be every reason for a difference in the penalties imposed, but even this can not justify some of the strange things that occur.

BARRE, SON OF KAZAN
 by James Oliver Curwood
A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH
 Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.
 "BARRE, SON OF KAZAN," a Viagraph Picture, with Wolf, the War Dog is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS
 Barre, the wolf-dog, wanders in the wilderness, came upon a colony of beavers. He tried to make friends with them, but they, like the little animals, ran away from him, leaving him alone and unhappy. He was attracted by the moaning of the moose and the yap-yap of a fox, but he turned away from them, for he was the call of his own, summing him to the chase, and the wild cry of torn flesh and running blood.

 For a quarter of an hour Barre watched him while he knuckled ash of the pool. When at last he stopped, there were two dead things lying among the stones, one of them dead and others still hopping. From where he lay flattened out between the two rocks, Barre could hear the crunching of flesh and bones as the bear devoured his dinner. It sounded good, and the fresh smell of fish filled his nose with a craving that he had never been roused by crayfish or even porridge.

Twenty seconds after the last of Wakayoo had disappeared in a tinge of the broken balm. He dragged out a fish that was still alive. He ate the whole of it, and it was delicious. Barre now found that Wakayoo had solved the food problem for him, and this day he did not return to the beaver pond, nor the nest. The big bear was incessantly fishing up and down the creek, and day after day Barre continued his feast.

For a week life continued to be exceedingly pleasant. And then came the break—the change that he dreaded. He had stood as much for Barre as that other day, long ago, had meant for Kazan, his father, when he killed the man-creature in the edge of the wilderness.

This change came on the day when, in tracing around a grove near the waterfall, Barre found himself face to face with Pierrito, the hunter, and Nepesee, the star-eyed girl who had been his friend in the chase. He was not Nepesee when he saw first. It had been Pierrito he would have turned back. This again the blood of his forebear was running strange reasonings within him. Was it like this that the first woman had looked to Kazan?

Barre stood still. Nepesee was not more than twenty feet from him. She sat on a rock, full in the early morning sun, and was laughing at her wonderful hair. Her lips parted. Her eyes shone in an instant like stars. One hand remained poised, weighted

COULD NOT SLEEP
 Pains and Headaches Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dublin, Ontario. "I was weak and irregular, with pains and headaches, and could not sleep nights. I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by reading the letters in the newspaper and tried it. I wanted to get better. I have got good results from it as I feel a lot stronger and am not troubled with such bad headaches as I used to be and am more cheerful. I am gaining in weight all the time and I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. I have written my letter as a help to others." Mrs. JAMES HATCH, Box 12, Dublin, Ontario.

Halifax Nurse Recommends
 Halifax, N. S. "I am a maternity nurse and have recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to many women who were childless, also to women who need a good tonic. My English and my husband is American. I have told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound in England. I would appreciate letters from any woman who writes to the Vegetable Compound." Mrs. S. M. COLLEMAN, 1050-1052, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

ward ahead of her Pierrito gave a warning shout. Barre had turned. Almost in the same breath he was tearing over his back-rail, directly toward the waterfall. He did not see her in time to stop or reverse, and Nepesee spun herself down in his path. For an instant or two they were together. There lay the mother of her hair, and the clutch of her hands. Then he squirmed away and darted again toward the blind end of the canyon.

Nepesee sprang to her feet. She was panting and heaving. Pierrito was back a half a mile, and the Willow pointed beyond him. "I had him and he didn't bite!" she said, breaking swiftly. She still pointed to the end of the canyon, and she said again: "I had him—and he didn't bite me, Nootawoo!"

That was the wonder of it. He had been reckless—and Barre had not bitten her. It was then, with her eyes shining at Pierrito, and the smiling smile from her lips, that she spoke softly the word "Barre," which in her tongue meant "the wild dog"—a little known to the three onlookers.

In and out among the rocks Barre sought safety by way of escape. In a moment more he had come to the "beaver" or camp of the canyon. It was a beautiful spot. On all sides but that leading into the canyon it was shut in by walls of rock. At the far end a waterfall came down in a series of rippling cascades. The grass was thick and tender, and strewn with flowers. In this trap Pierrito had got more than he had bargained for. From it there was no escape, except the face of his rifle. He killed Nepesee as he lay down in the grass, and together they climbed the slope.

Barre had almost reached the edge of the little arken-meadow when suddenly he stopped himself so quickly that he fell back on his haunches, and his head jumped up into his hands.

Full in his path stood Wakayoo, the huge black bear! Barre dashed to one side and ran for the open meadow. Wakayoo did not stir as Barre sped past him—he knew that if he had been a lion or a rabbit, then came another breath of air, heavy with the scent of man. At this, at last, he turned. He turned back and began lumbering after Barre into the meadow trap. Barre, looking back, saw him coming—and thought it was paralytic. Nepesee and Pierrito came over the slope and at the same instant they saw both Wakayoo and Barre.

Where they entered into the grassy dip under the rock walls, Barre turned sharply to the right. There was a great boulder, one end of it filled up the earth. It looked like a giant hiding place, and Barre crawled under it.

That was Barre's secret straight ahead into the meadow! (To be continued.)

Guessed Right
 A crowd of small boys was gathered about the entrance to a circus tent, a man standing near the entrance. "I guess you're right," he said to the ticket collector and said with a wink of his eye.

"Let all these boys in and count them as they pass." The ticket collector said as requested, and when the last one had passed he turned and said: "Twenty-eight, sir."

"Good," said the man, smiling, as he walked away. "I thought I guessed right."—Los Angeles Times.

Comet Had Several Tails

Six Diverged From Head of One Discovers in 1743

It is reported from Germany that photographs taken of the comet Orkides show that it has now developed a sort of tail. This tail cannot be seen with a telescope. The primary tail alone, to all intents and purposes, merely a photographic effect, only the vaguest indications of it being perceptible in a telescope. A duplicate, or even a multiplicity, of tails is by no means an uncommon occurrence, although it is not often seen in objects so faint as the present comet. The comet of 1743, discovered by Kirch, had six tails diverging like the ribs of a fan from its head. In some comets the tails are curved, in others they are straight, while in others curved and straight tails exist together.

Cure For Social Cancers

Better Discipline and Higher Ideals For the Youth of the Land
 We are convinced that the best cure for most of our social troubles is to be applied in the childhood of the nation in the formation of self-discipline, respect and right doing and in the acquiring of ideals and standards of conduct. In the Boy Scouts under scout masters is one of the best counter agents to evil influences. The wider American spread the foundation of sound childhood, healthily exercised, self-disciplined and convinced that the right thing is the strong thing, not the weak, the more we shall be getting rid of our social cancers—Child Cancers.

Minard's Liniment For Displacer

A Canadian Explorer Major Burwash Starts On a Long Patrol of Northern Points in Canada

When Amundsen made his spectacular flight to the North Pole—or to some point in its vicinity—the whole world was interested. When the McMillan expedition, thoroughly outfitted and equipped in every way for its work of Arctic exploration set out, every item of news about the party was featured in the press of the world.

Less is heard about the trip a Canadian is making into the far north. The expedition published by the Interior Department at Ottawa gives some particulars about the little advertised adventure on which Major L. T. Burwash, of the government service, has embarked. Major Burwash has started on a long patrol from the Mackenzie River to Hudson's Bay. He goes alone on his two legs, expects to be two years on the journey, and to live with the Eskimos and the Indians.

He will study the country, estimate the population, make astronomical and meteorological observations, and take notes on bird, animal and floral life. He expects at the end of two years to return to the coast either at Repulse Bay or Chesterfield Inlet, as convenience at the end of the trip may determine. There is no great publicity about such an adventure as that of Major Burwash. Nor is it unusual for men in the Canadian service to make these long and arduous northern journeys. Men of the department of the Interior are forever doing it as men of the Mounted Police. There is scarcely a man in the service of the Mounted Police issued that does not contain a brief but graphic report of a trip covering long months and thousands of miles on foot, by canoe, dog-sled and snowshoes. These trips are often made by men of action, not writers, but some wonderful books of travel would appear.—Regina Leader.

London Zoo Loses Old Exhibit White Bear Has Been Entertaining Feature For 22 Years

Sam, the white bear which has been one of the most entertaining features of the London zoo for 22 years, was recently sentenced to die a military death and was formally shot. The bear had been steadily increasing to take a bath, although when in his prime, scrupulous attention to his appearance was one of his many peculiarities. The reason for Sam's loss of interest in life is domestic. For 19 of his 24 years Sam had been the long-haired husband of a wife even more famous than himself. She died and efforts to find Sam a new wife failed. Little, three years old and decidedly plumper in her way, was introduced, but Sam resisted all her charms, treating with rude contempt until his wife died. Little's anger him beyond endurance and he ducked her in the pool and sat on her head. That ended Little's life. Sam's wife, and newly ended Little's life.

English Oaks Becoming Rare

Not Good For Use Until Tree is 400 Years Old

England's famed oaks are disappearing. Many oaks were cut during the war, as the wood was urgently needed. It is said that "The wood of an oak is not really any good until the tree is 400 years old, and people today cannot afford to grow oaks for posterity. Originally large oaks of England were covered with oaks. The tree is almost a rarity in some places. It is said that an oak takes 400 years to grow to full size, is mature for another 600 years, and takes 400 years more to decay. In some cases I should say this is true."
